Digital Signs Advertising Service For School Districts

Connect With More Future Students

VueIP provides higher education the ability to advertise their campuses, academics and athletics to potential students. Digital signs are now being deployed on school districts across the country. This allows for more dynamic and annual advertising compared to single brochure delivery content.

From entry ways to cafeterias, stadiums to libraries students can see your content for education offerings for higher education learning. You will be able to have daily content in front of future students and even testimonials from past students detailing their experiences at your campuses. Digital signs bring new advertising avenues to that specific district. Prep campus for on-site visit from college representatives as well.
